THIS IS UNEVALUATED INFORMATION 50X1-HUM On about 10 September 1951, an unknown number of Russian infantry of Hongolian appearance coming from Goerlitz passed through Dresden and Chemnitz and went toward Zwickau. The present location of these soldiers is unknown, but they may be in the Weimar-Jena area where Mongol "Strafeinheiten" have allegedly terrorized the population. 2. A new concentration of troops is reported in the triangle south of Plauen and Falkenstein in Saxony. (1) The airfields at Jena and Veimar are being repaired and enlarged, and new 3. contonents are under construction there. A census of local doctors and hospital beds has been taken. (2) The troops which have been training in the Cumbinnen area and are now in the Stettin area will move to central Germany because of inadequate winter quarters in the Stettin area. (3) A new concentration of Russian, Polish and German troops has been observed in the Demmin-Jarmen-Stavenhagen area. (3) Comment: The present order of battle situation of the Russian forces in Germany appears defensive, It may be that the Russians are actually frightened by the current series of the western armies' manoeuvres. Comment: There are no other reports of a new concentration of Russian troops in this area. Comment: There are no reports that the Russians plan to use the fields at Weimar and Jena. Comment: It is known that German Seepolizei are located in this area, and that Hauptverwaltung für Ausbilding units occasionally train there. The resence of Polish troops is doubted. The Russian Second Guards Mechanized Army may use this area for ranceuvres but no concentration has been reported there.
